

The Ultimate Guide to Understanding the Binary MLM Plan

What is a Binary MLM Plan?

The binary MLM compensation plan is simple but highly effective, with a two-branch system that makes the MLM plan well-structured. In this model, every distributor leads a team, which begins by recruiting two new members.

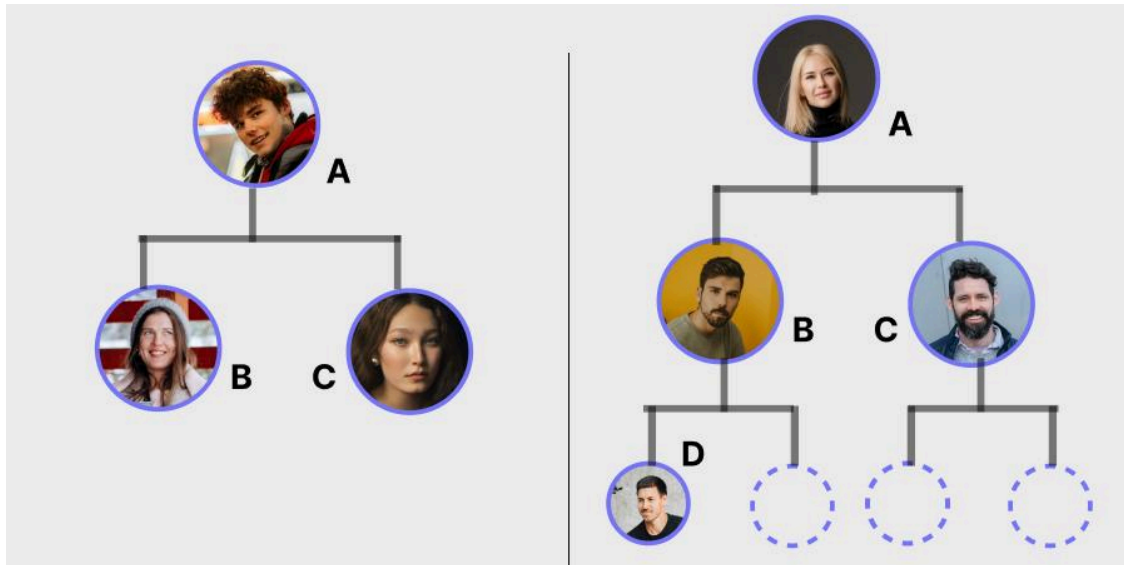

If more than two members are recruited, the excess members are placed using a spill-over technique, promoting network growth.

Why Choose a Binary Compensation Plan?

The binary MLM plan organizes networks into two groups (left and right), making it popular for its straightforward structure. The plan is well-known for its simple and dual-branch structure. It is appreciated by those who find it easy, profitable, and flexible.

How Does a Binary MLM Plan Work?

The binary MLM plan splits the network into two parts, forming a binary tree. Here are two scenarios demonstrating how recruitment works:

Scenario 1: Same Sponsor and Parent

In this instance, distributor X sponsors A to their binary network. Member A instantly finds another person, B, and adds member B to the left side of the binary system.

Now, member A also adds another person, C, and places them on the right side. This makes members B and C direct recruits under A, forming a team. The binary compensation plan rewards member A based on the combined performance of B and C. This binary plan demonstrates the effectiveness of direct recruitment.

Scenario 2: Different Sponsor and Parent

Let's say member A recruits members B and C directly. Now, when member A recruits a third member, D, the spill-over occurs. Since A already has two frontline members (B and C), member D will be placed under one of them. In this example, member D is placed under member B due to spill-over.

Member A can continue to recruit new members who will be placed under B or C in a similar manner, creating a spill-over effect that helps build depth in the organization.

Types of Spillover Preferences in Binary MLM Plan

1. Extreme Left/Right Spilling: Extra members are placed in one branch, encouraging balanced effort.
2. Weaker Side/Pay Leg Spilling: New members are added to the weaker side, ensuring even sales volume.
3. Balanced Spilling: Members are alternately placed between left and right, promoting unity.
4. Multi-Center Tree: Premium packages allow distributors to hold multiple spots in the network.

Binary Commission Calculation

- Weak Leg-Based Commissions

In a binary multi-level marketing plan, payments are made based on your team that earns the least sales volume.

Each person has two sales teams, one that earns well (strong leg) and the other that has less performance (weak leg).

Let's consider an example.

Imagine there is a distributor named Peter who manages two sales teams. His left team (Team 1) brings a sale of 500 whereas the right leg (Team 2) brings a sale of 1100.

In this case, Team 1 is the weak leg, and Team 2 is the strong leg. Peter earns a commission rate of 10% on the weak leg's sales. So, he earns $50 from the 500 sales volume.

The additional sales from the stronger team (600 over here) are carried forward to the next payout period. This method motivates Peter to help both teams evenly.

- Sales Ratio-Based Commissions

In this method, distributors earn commissions when their sales volume from both branches of the binary system matches a set ratio.

There are two types of sales ratios: 1:1 or 1:2.

In a 1:1 sales ratio mode, if a distributor achieves equal sales volume on both sides, the distributor gets paid.

binary commission calculation sales ratio example

Let's imagine,

Distributor A having two members – X and Y. X is placed on the left, and Y is on the right. let's say the binary commission configured is 10%.

When X makes a total sale of 100 units and Y makes a sale of 220, A is rewarded with a commission of 10% of the weak leg volume, which is 10% of the 100 units sold by both X and Y. The commission is $10.

The extra 120 sales volume of Y will be carried forward for the next commission calculation.

On the other hand, if the model requires one side's sales to be double that of the other side (a 2:1 ratio), in the same example above, if Y achieves a sales volume of 200 compared to X's 100, A will earn a commission of $10, with the additional sales volume of 20 moving to the next payout period.

Capping in Binary Commission

Capping refers to the maximum commission limit during a specific time frame. It can be based on sales volume, initial investment, or rank.
